Frank Strazzeri, pianist, composer. Born in Rochester, New York, Frank Strazzeri started his musical studies playing tenor saxophone and clarinet at the age of twelve. He began piano lessons in the seventh grade and later enrolled in the Eastman School of Music preparatory department, where he continued studying piano through high school.

When Frank arrived in Los Angeles in 1960, he began working with many jazz notables such as Kenny Dorham, Bud Shank, Chet Baker, Art Pepper, Frank Rosolino, Joe Pass, Conti Candoli, Kai Winding, Joe Henderson, and Stan Getz, to name a few.

Frank became the house pianist for World Pacific Jazz label, and during the next five years, recorded numerous albums with such great artists as Red Mitchell, Harold Land, Terry Gibbs, Herb Ellis, Joe Pass, Carmell Jones, Bobby Hutcherson, and the big bands of Oliver Nelson, Gerald Wilson, and countless others.

In 1969, Frank served as musical coordinator for the nationally televised Johnny Cash Show, and shortly thereafter joined the great Les Brown band for three years performing with many stars including Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra in concerts and TV specials throughout the world.

After leaving Les Brown, Frank joined Elvis Presley for two tours. The concert at Madison Square Garden, and the now famous Hawaii Special were recorded live and are still available on the RCA Victor label.
